Clark county soil is well adapted o the growth of this plant and the Kentucky Wesleyan broom factory will make the corn into brooms on ery reasonable terms.

There are two varities of the plant, Standard and Dwarf. Standard is the variety needed here. The eed should be obtained from a first class seedman, since it mixes readily by His Holy Spirit, to a saving with sorghum and other kindred

Plant in fertile soil; if drilled, the plants should be rows three and half feet apart and plants about three inches in the row, or if planted in hils, the hills shoud be a foot apart and three or four stalks in a hill. The time for planting is from the middle of May to fifth of June. Cut when the plant is in full bloom for broom-making.

Racks for drying should be so arranged that the tops would be kept straight. The drying should be in the shade. If the seed is wanted as well as he fiber, of course the plant will stand until the seed is fully developed but the plant turns red and becomes brittle and is not so valauble as broom material. Those who desire to inform themselves more fully should write their Senator or Congressman for Farmers' Bulletin No. 174.
